

BOOK CLUB NIGHT KIT

A Forsaken Prophecy

Stacey McEwan

🌙 COZY NIGHT

The second chapter in Stacey McEwan's Artisan trilogy follows Nina and Patrick on a resource-hunting journey that could tip the tides of war, blending high-stakes fantasy with tender character moments.

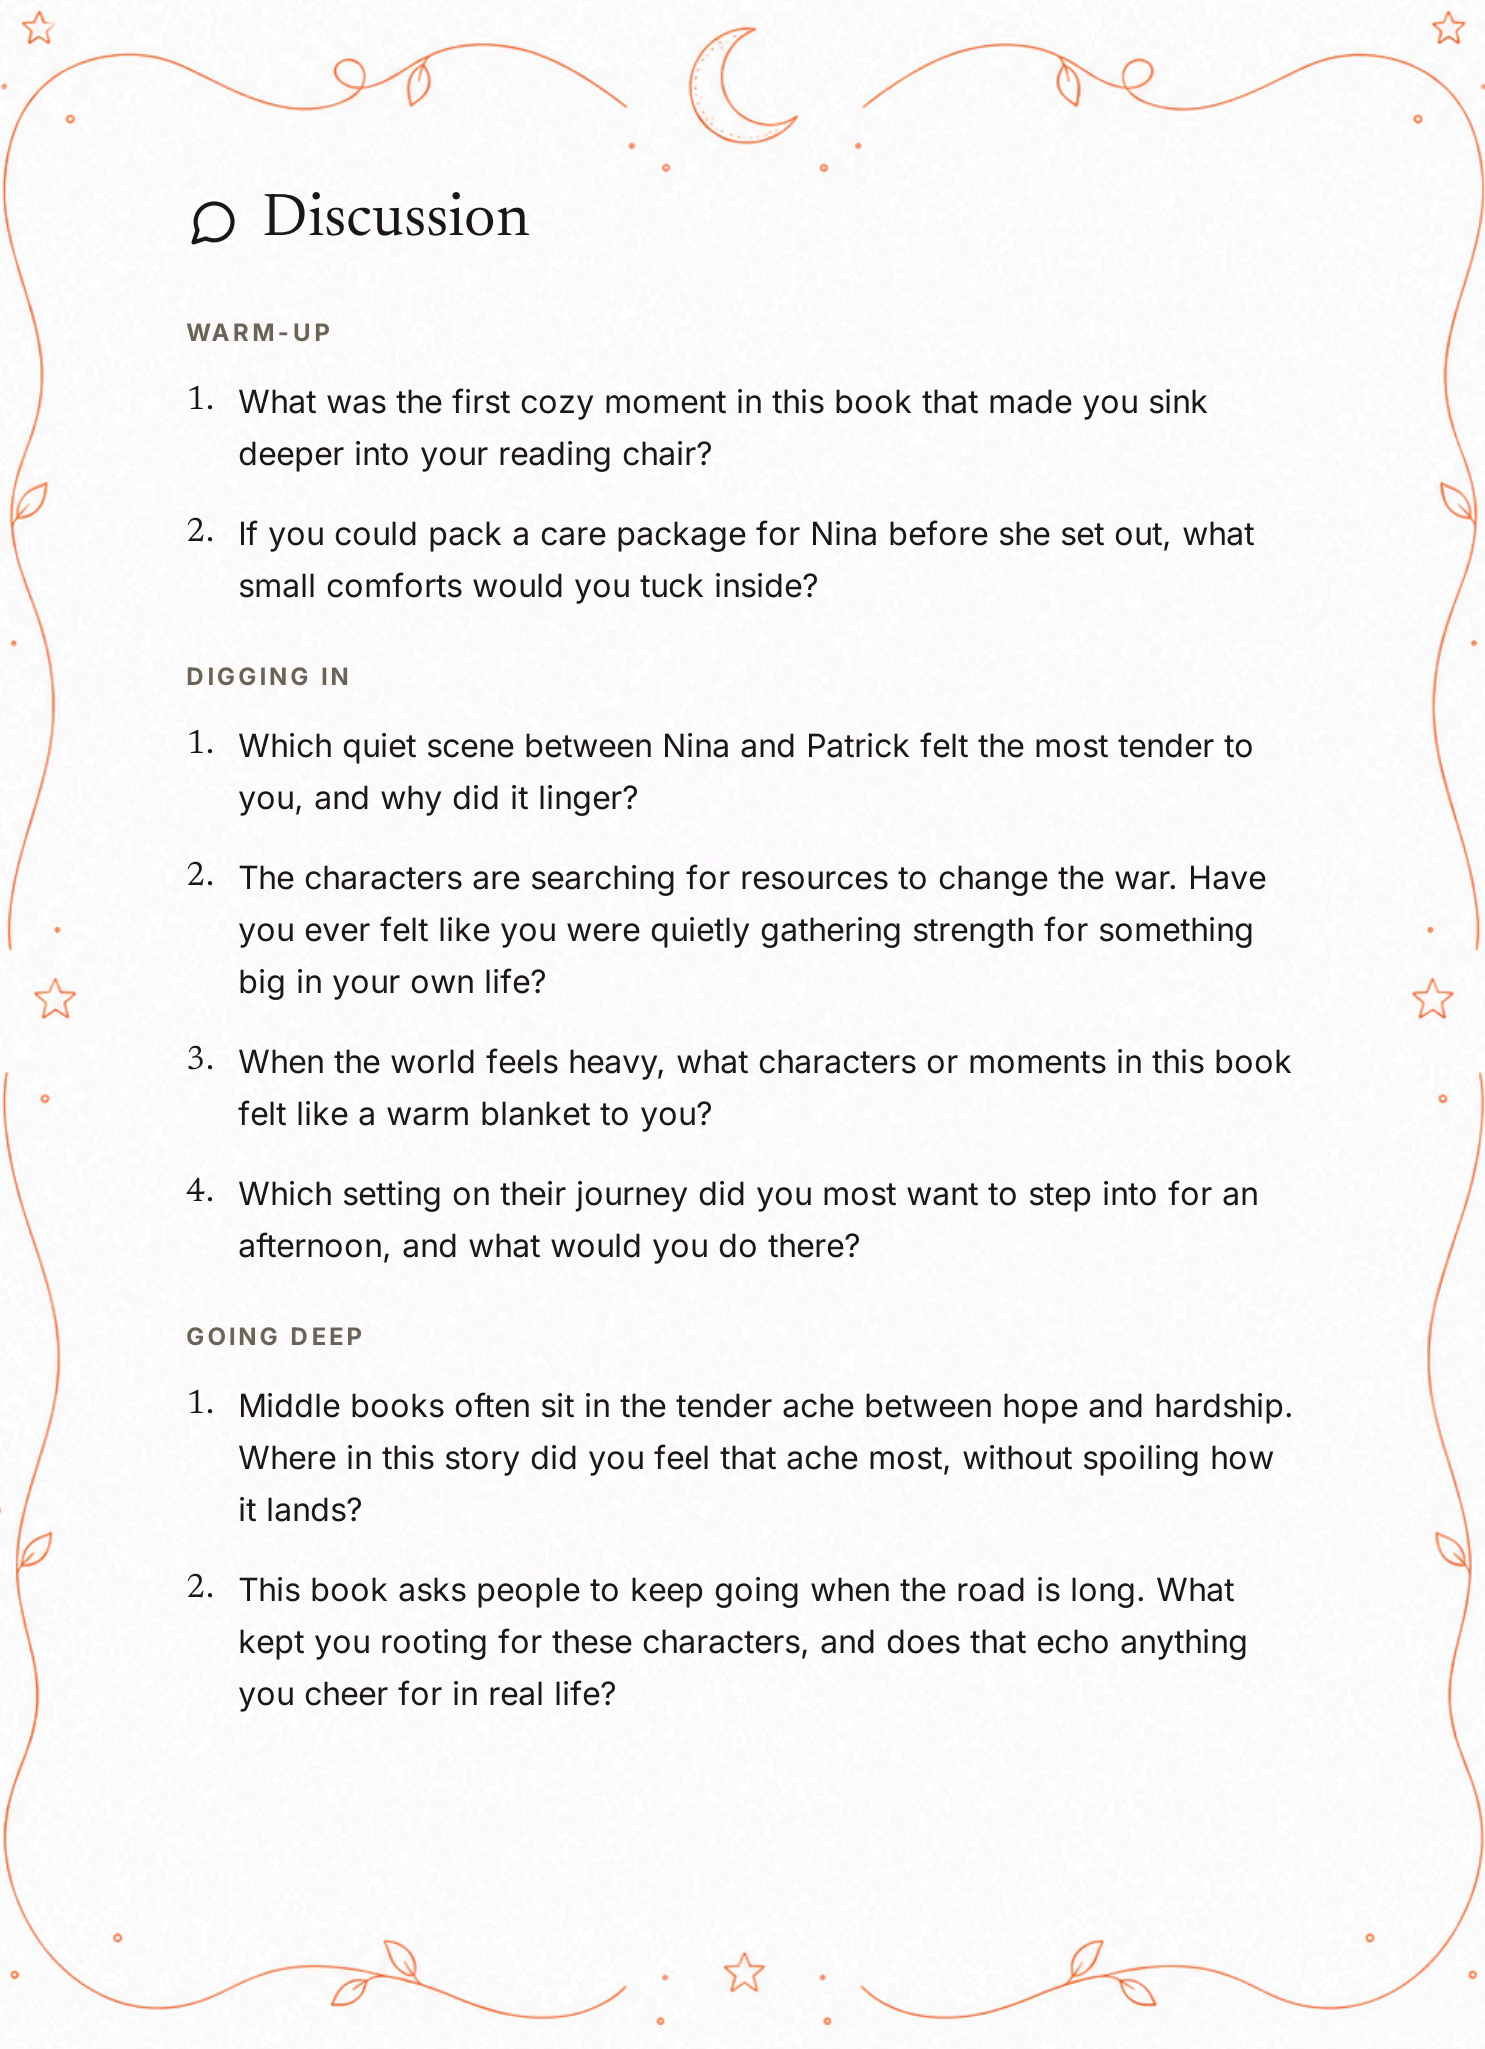

A Cozy Night with Nina and Patrick

Bring your softest sweater and your dog-eared copy. We are gathering around stew, tea, and warm conversation about A Forsaken Prophecy.

Reading level: Moderate

Best for: clubs who love fantasy romance and character-first storytelling shared over blankets and tea

Discussion

WARM-UP

1. What was the first cozy moment in this book that made you sink deeper into your reading chair?
2. If you could pack a care package for Nina before she set out, what small comforts would you tuck inside?

DIGGING IN

1. Which quiet scene between Nina and Patrick felt the most tender to you, and why did it linger?
2. The characters are searching for resources to change the war. Have you ever felt like you were quietly gathering strength for something big in your own life?
3. When the world feels heavy, what characters or moments in this book felt like a warm blanket to you?
4. Which setting on their journey did you most want to step into for an afternoon, and what would you do there?

GOING DEEP

1. Middle books often sit in the tender ache between hope and hardship. Where in this story did you feel that ache most, without spoiling how it lands?
2. This book asks people to keep going when the road is long. What kept you rooting for these characters, and does that echo anything you cheer for in real life?

On the table & to sip

TO EAT

Hearth-style beef and root vegetable stew

The kind of long-simmered meal travelers on a wartime quest would dream about between cold nights

Crusty bread with honey butter

A humble, comforting pairing that suits the book's rustic, journeying feel

Warm spiced apple crumble with cream

A tender, homey dessert for a book full of stolen soft moments

TO SIP

Mulled red wine with orange and clove

Warms the hands like a fireside in a fantasy inn

Honeyed chamomile and vanilla tea (no alcohol)

A soothing, non-alcoholic hug in a mug for readers who want gentle warmth

Spiked hot cider with cinnamon

Autumnal, adventurous, and perfect for slow sipping between questions

Run of show

7:00 Arrive and nest

Greet guests with tea and let them claim a blanket or floor cushion

7:15 Stew and settle

Serve the stew and bread while doing warm-up questions casually around the table

7:45 Theme talk

Move into theme questions, encouraging tangents and personal stories

8:20 Dessert and deep dive

Bring out crumble and cream as the conversation softens into deeper questions

8:50 Trivia and scorecards

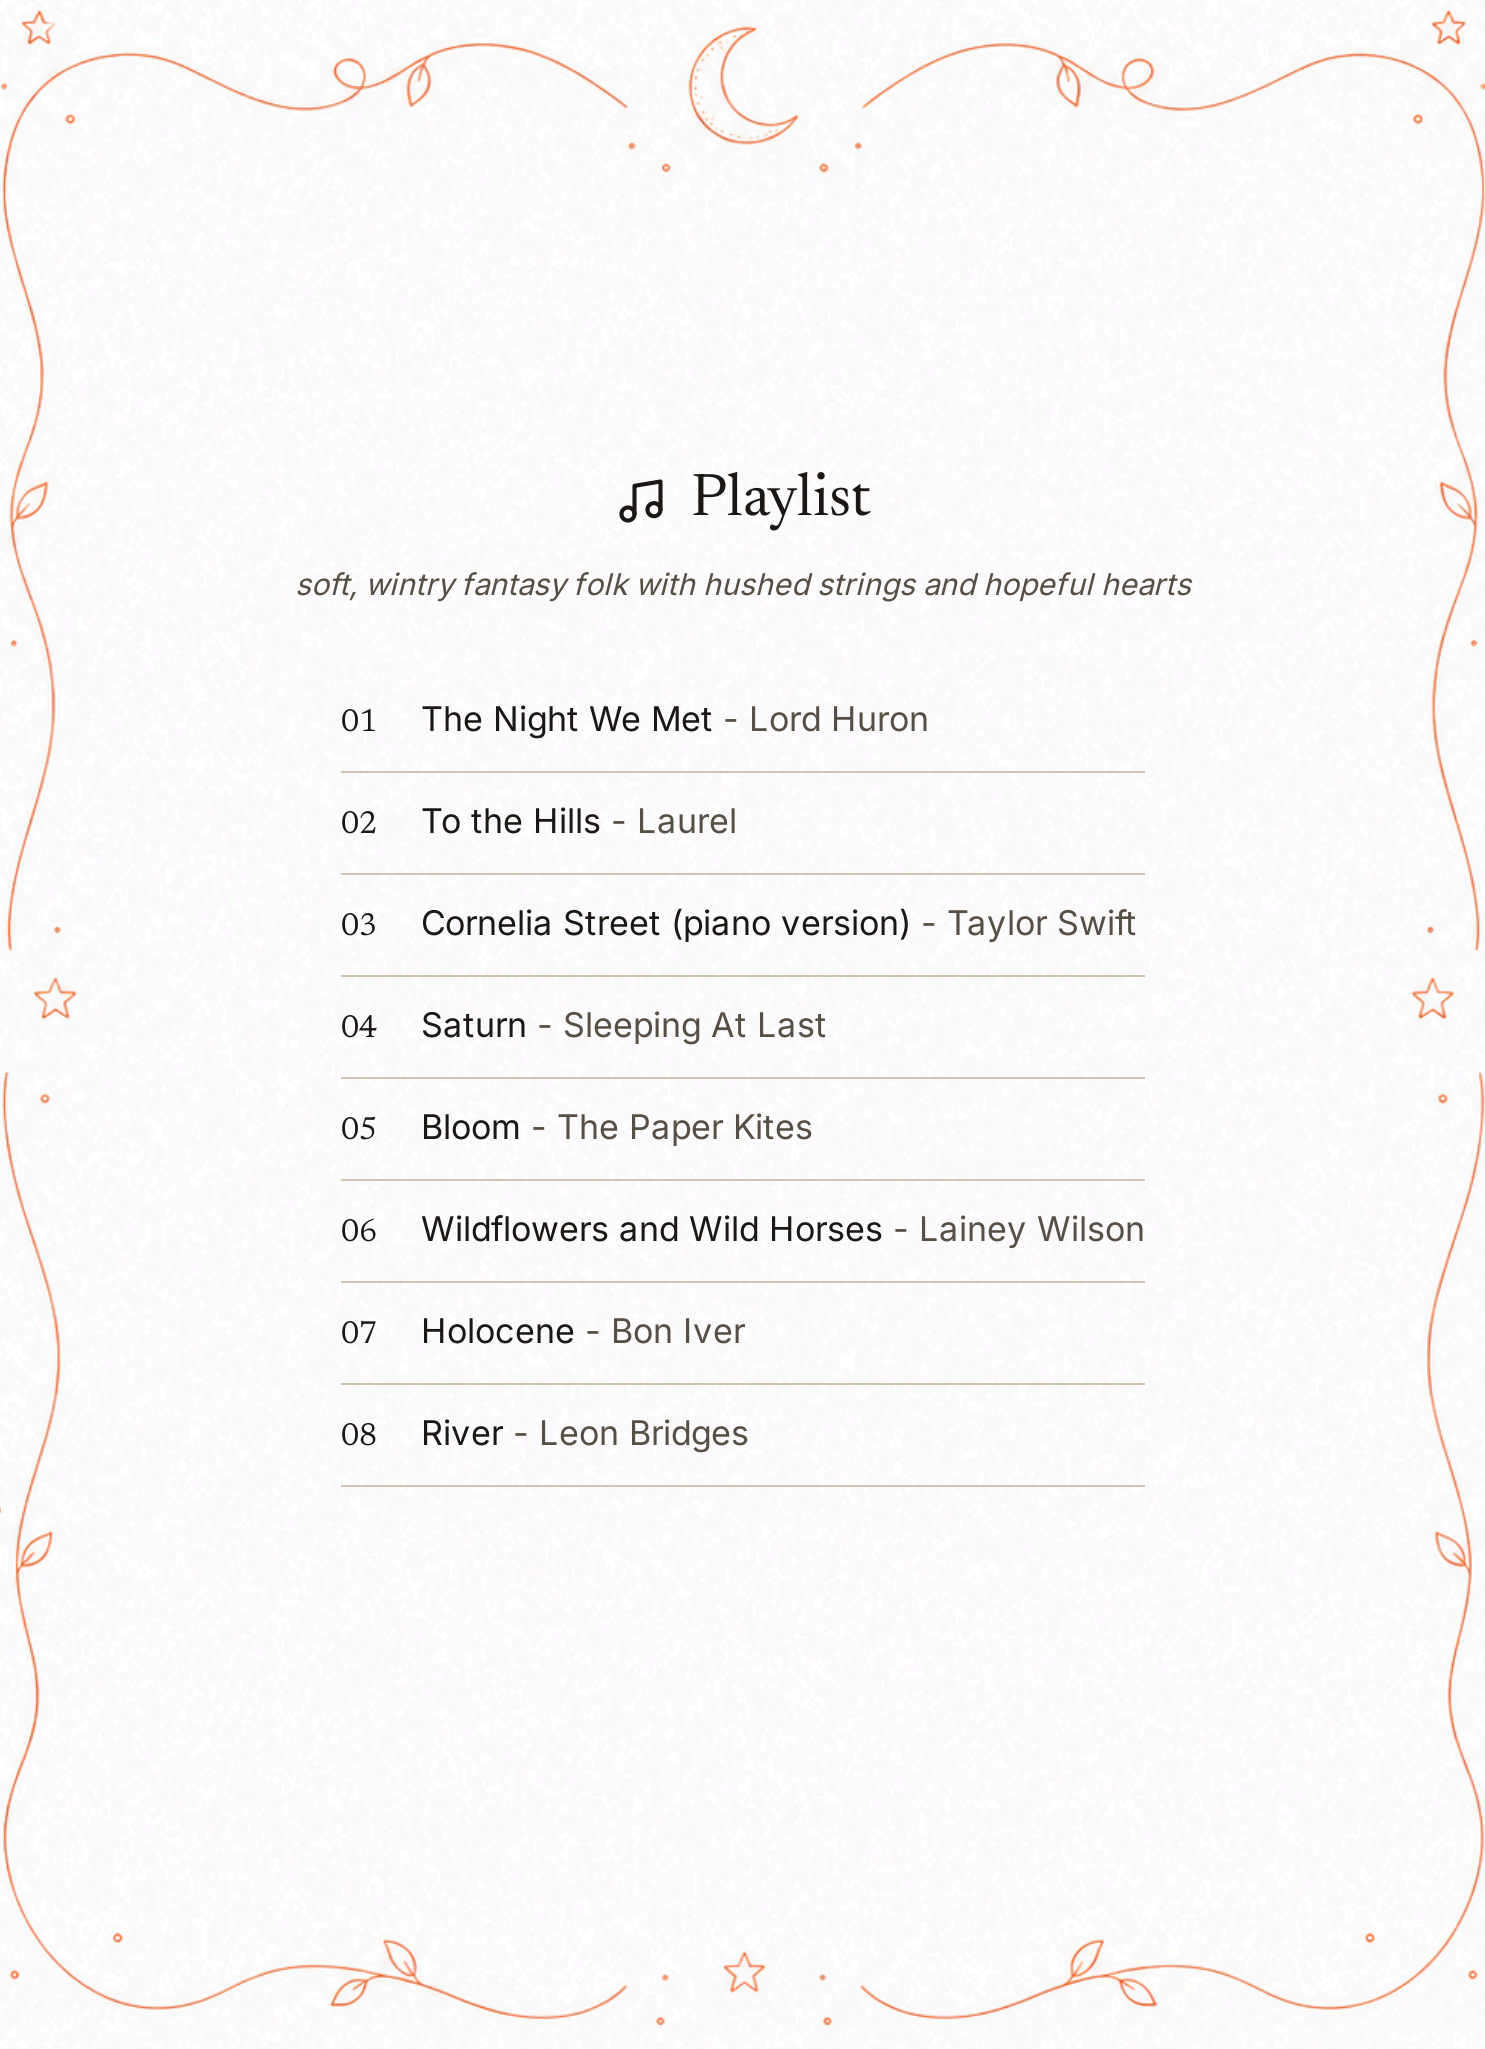

Play a low-key trivia round and pass out scorecards to fill in together

9:10 Linger and swap

Refill mugs, share what everyone is reading next, send guests home with a bookmark

HOST TIPS

- Dim overhead lights and lean on lamps or candles to set the hearth mood
- Have extra blankets and slippers by the door so guests can truly settle in
- Prep the stew earlier in the day so you can be fully present when people arrive
