

BOOK CLUB NIGHT KIT

Twisted Road

Christine Feehan

🌙 COZY NIGHT

The 10th Torpedo Ink book brings you back to a fiercely loyal motorcycle club family on the Northern California coast. It's a good pick for a cozy night because under the danger and heat, the story keeps asking what it takes for wounded people to feel safe, wanted, and home.

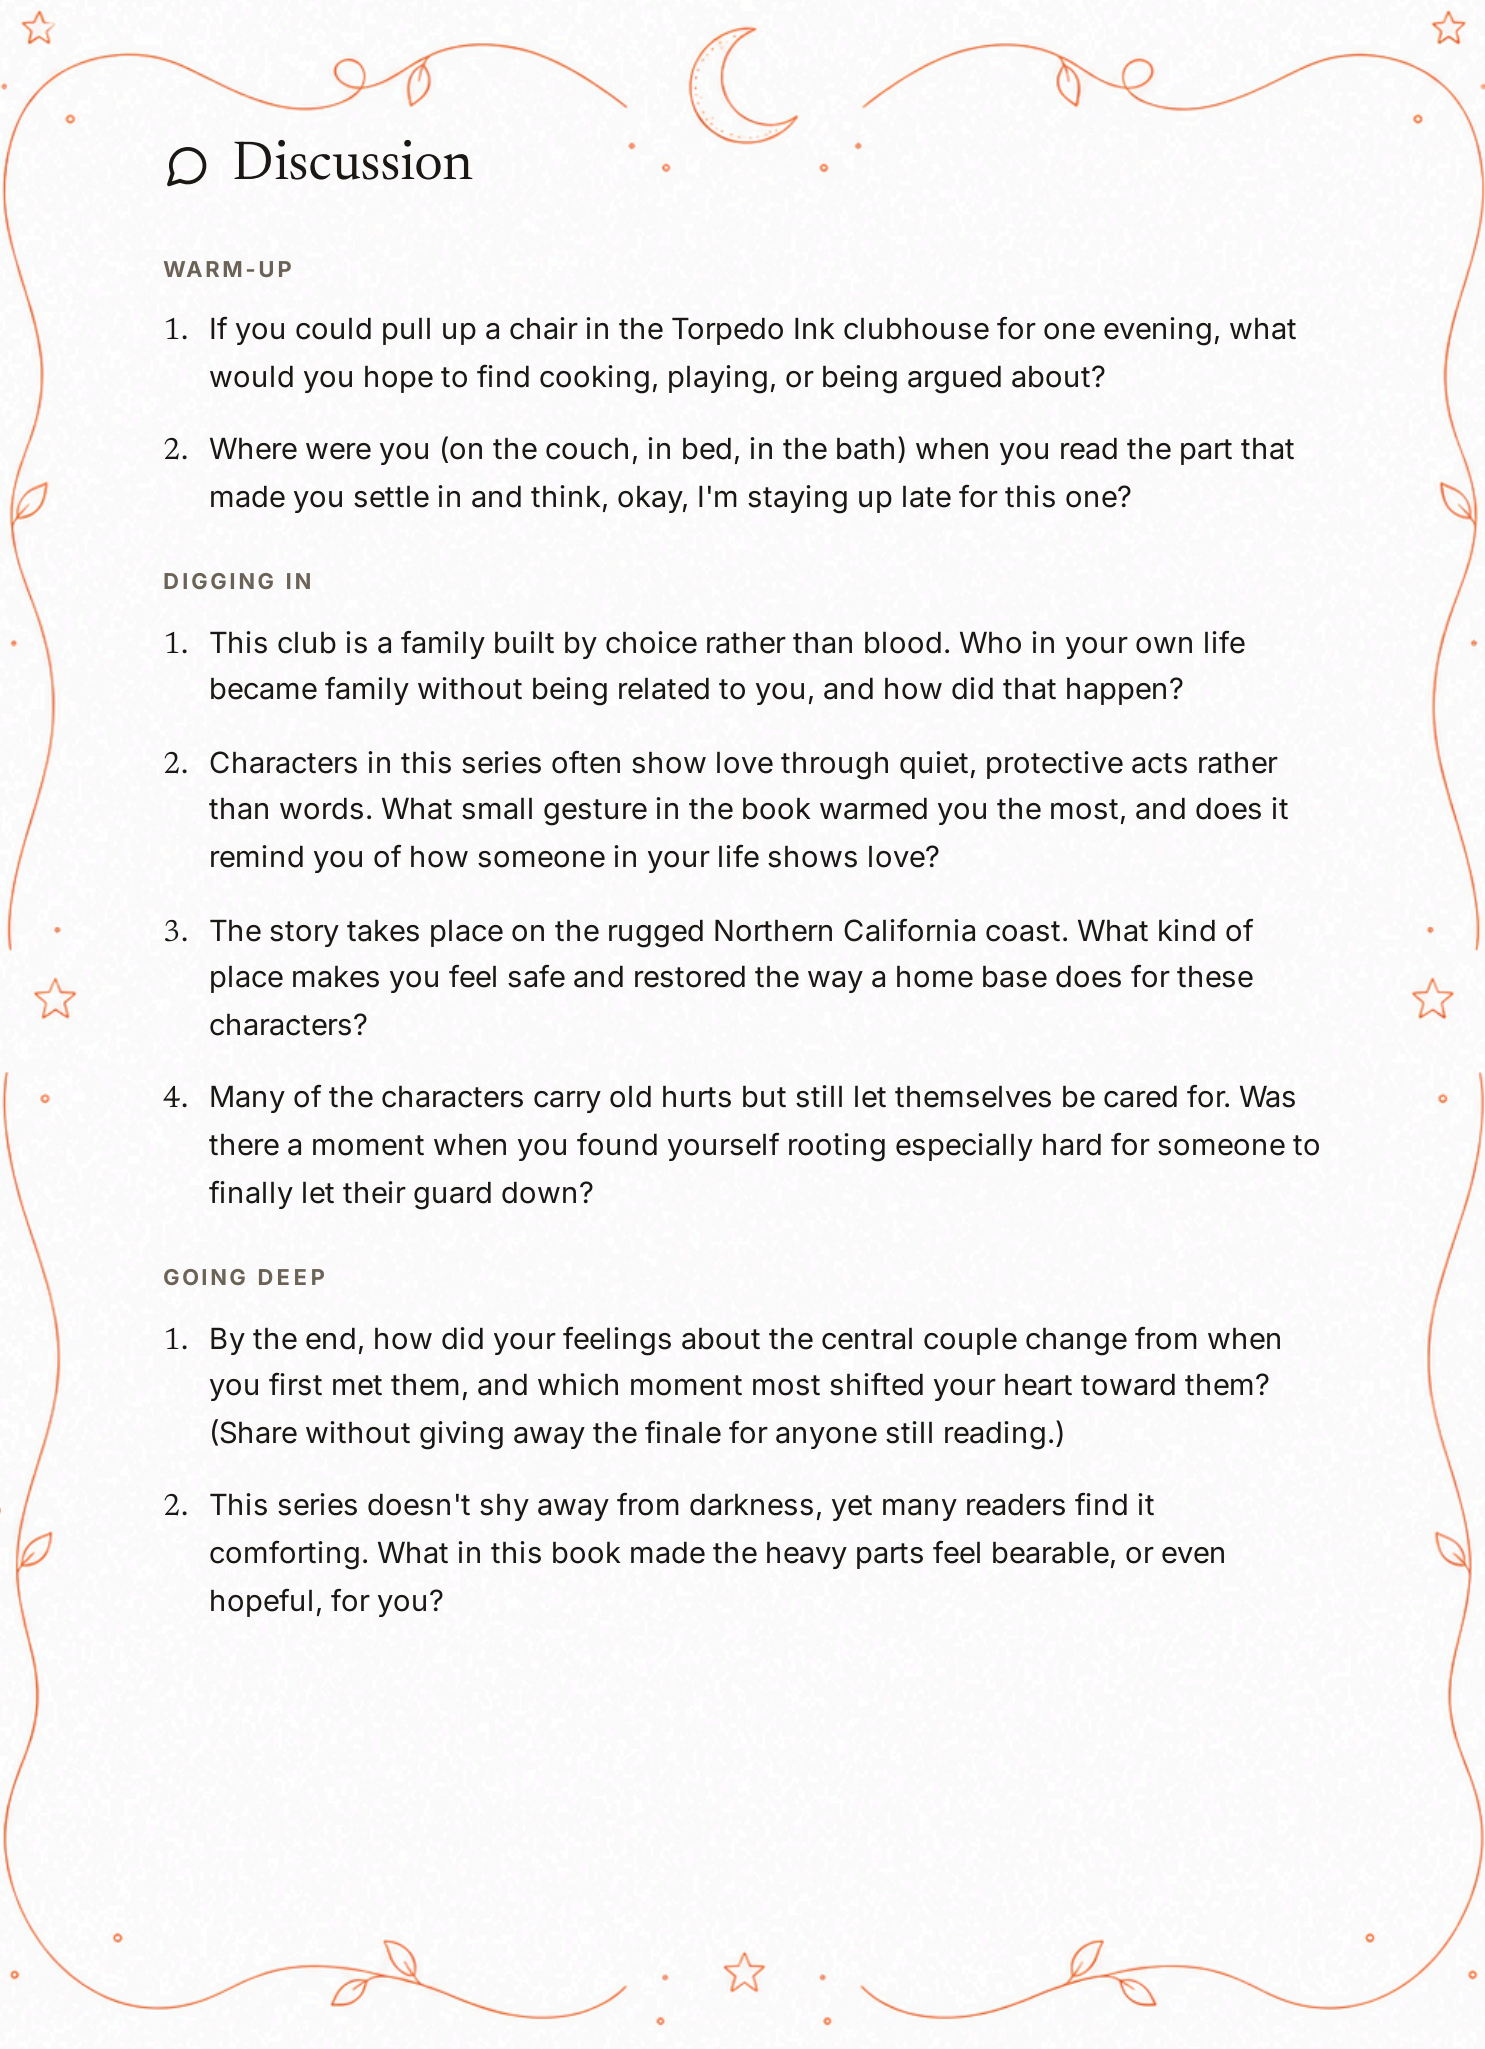

Pull Up a Chair at the Clubhouse

Bring your blanket and your big feelings for a cozy night of chowder, warm mugs, and Twisted Road talk. Leathers optional, comfy socks encouraged.

Reading level: Easy

Best for: Romance-loving clubs who want a comfy, snack-heavy night talking about love, loyalty, and the families we choose

Discussion

WARM-UP

1. If you could pull up a chair in the Torpedo Ink clubhouse for one evening, what would you hope to find cooking, playing, or being argued about?
2. Where were you (on the couch, in bed, in the bath) when you read the part that made you settle in and think, okay, I'm staying up late for this one?

DIGGING IN

1. This club is a family built by choice rather than blood. Who in your own life became family without being related to you, and how did that happen?
2. Characters in this series often show love through quiet, protective acts rather than words. What small gesture in the book warmed you the most, and does it remind you of how someone in your life shows love?
3. The story takes place on the rugged Northern California coast. What kind of place makes you feel safe and restored the way a home base does for these characters?
4. Many of the characters carry old hurts but still let themselves be cared for. Was there a moment when you found yourself rooting especially hard for someone to finally let their guard down?

GOING DEEP

1. By the end, how did your feelings about the central couple change from when you first met them, and which moment most shifted your heart toward them? (Share without giving away the finale for anyone still reading.)
2. This series doesn't shy away from darkness, yet many readers find it comforting. What in this book made the heavy parts feel bearable, or even hopeful, for you?

☕ On the table & to sip

TO EAT

☕ New England clam chowder in sourdough bread bowls

A warm nod to the foggy Northern California coast where the club lives, and pure comfort in a bowl

☕ Slow-cooker pulled pork sliders with coleslaw

Hearty roadhouse food for a biker family, and a make-ahead dish that lets the host relax

🥞 Skillet apple crumble with vanilla ice cream

A homey, slightly indulgent dessert that feels like being looked after by people who love you

TO SIP

☕ Irish coffee with whipped cream

A strong, warming drink for a crew that's tough outside and soft underneath

🥞 Bourbon-spiked hot apple cider

Roadhouse spirit meets a cozy fireside mug, with cinnamon sticks for stirring

☕ Rich salted-caramel hot chocolate (no alcohol)

A non-alcoholic mug of pure comfort, topped with marshmallows for anyone who wants extra cozy

HOST TIPS

- The Torpedo Ink series covers heavy topics and has explicit content, so send a gentle heads-up with the invite and make it clear anyone can pass on a question.
- Make the chowder base and pulled pork a day ahead so you can enjoy the evening instead of standing at the stove.
- Let newcomers to the series know they're welcome, and ask series veterans to share background without spoiling anything.
